Continuity of management activities during the coronavirus crisis – the AMF continues to support market participants

In the context of the current health crisis and high market volatility, which require special arrangements to be put in place in the asset management industry to protect the interests of unitholders or shareholders of collective investment undertakings (CIUs), the AMF is committed to supporting portfolio asset management companies (AMCs) and addressing questions raised by some market participants or their industry associations.

This publication may be supplemented or updated as needed or in response to individual questions from market participants that the AMF deems to be of general interest.
